OSLO - The Viking Capital of Norway

Oslo is the smallest of the Scandinavian capitals, yet perhaps the most interesting to the holidaymaker. Founded in the year 1050 by the Viking King Harold the Hard-ruler, burnt down several times and rebuilt again by King Christian IV in 1624, the city is a curious mixture of different architectural styles.

Its greatest assets are the vast areas of hills, forests, rivers and lakes – 456 square kilometres in all, surrounding the city on three sides – and the lovely Oslofjord with its beaches, islands and fishing villages.

Famous art galleries such as the Munch Museum, the Vigeland Museum, the new Henie-Onstad Collection and the National Gallery, the collections at the Folk Museum, the exquisite Viking Ships, the Polar Ship «Fram» and the Kon-Tiki Raft, all at the Bygdøy peninsula, attract visitors from all over the world. Don't miss the new Resistance Museum at Akershus.

Especially recommended:

THE OSLO TOWN HALL — THE MUNCH MUSEUM — THE VIKING SHIPS — THE KON-TIKI RAFT — THE VIGELAND SCULPTURES – THE HENIE-ONSTAD ART CENTRE
